ThripsID: Pest thrips of the world is an interactive identification and information system that provides a fully illustrated and user-friendly means of recognising most of the thrips species that have been recorded as pests in various parts of the world. This comprehensive package also offers a range of information on the host plants, distributions and body structure of these species.

FEATURES

- Covers 180 species in 95 genera
- Illustrated with more than 1500 original micrographs
- Shows details of the structure of each species

ThripsID: Pest Thrips of the World will be a valuable resource for research workers, quarantine officers, economic entomologists and virologists, and also teachers and students who wish to know more about this order of insects.
